beginnings and endings.

I am sorry that my beginning coincides with your graduation from Cooper Union, but I am glad that we have shared at least one year nonetheless.

Each graduating class at Cooper Union is special, because each class we admit is exceptional. In the year you entered as freshmen, the country had just finished celebrating its two hundredth year as a republic. During the four years that followed, many changes occurred in government, science, arts, economics, and our social structure—while you changed from promising high school graduates to college-educated artists, architects, and engineers, ready to play an active role in the future directions of these United States.

Cooper Union has benefitted by your having been here, and, judging from the evidence at hand, you have been the beneficiaries of a sound education. Use your skills wisely and well.

On behalf of the trustees, faculty, alumni, staff, and fellow students who remain behind, I wish you success in your careers. May you reflect credit on yourselves and your alma mater in all your future endeavors.

Admittedly, Cable 1981 is a rather haphazard production. I myself had no intention of becoming involved in the Cable at the beginning of the year. I discovered in late October that there was no Cable staff, nor plans for organizing one. At that time I proposed to Dean Gore a minimalistic production with a space allotted to each student to do with as he or she wished. Unfortunately, our entire class was not able to become a part of the Cable. Many students simply did not have the time to produce a photograph of themselves.

Within The Cooper Union I would like to thank:
–The staff of the Cable for their enthusiasm and desire to help, especially Lisa Barton and Ileen Gladstone for their continuous interest and participation
–Marilyn Gore who provided a great deal of assistance in organizing the three schools, –Dean Sadek for the use of the Center for Design and Typography in laying out the Cable, and –Richard Hoyen for the cover design.

On behalf of The Cooper Union I would like to thank the publishers, John Lucas Litho, for their generous offer to publish the book on a cost basis. Without this arrangement it would have been nearly impossible to produce an acceptable Cable on the allotted budget.

Most especially, I would like to thank Ed Fleming for volunteering his services as a business manager and procuring the best possible printer for our circumstances.

Finally, our fondest thanks go to the faculty of The Cooper Union for teaching us to think and act for ourselves.
